We do not what we ought,
What we ought not, we do,
And lean upon the thought
That chance will bring us through.
—Matthew Arnold.

The New Alignment in Arizona

Far be it from us to add confusion to the already complicated and implicated affairs of the democratic party in this state. And still further be it from us to attempt, in spite of the wisdom born of experience, to attempt to administer friendly counsel and admonition to parties already heated by domestic discord. As a rank outsider, we hesitate to approach the scene of conflict of the Hunt and Olney forces, for where there is conflict, there is danger to the rank outsider. Those who have watched two fierce bulls fighting on the range, have observed that all the other cattle, and even cowboys, keep themselves at a safe distance. Certain things, though, have attached themselves to this Hunt-Olney affair, as to which none of us are wholly unconcerned.

There was, or was to be, at Bisbee on Sunday night, a meeting. It was advertised by the promoters that "Mother Jones, the Stormy Petrel of the Working Class," would be there, and that the meeting would be further graced by the presence of one C. E. Grow, whose claim to fame appears to rest wholly on an association, actual or only suspected, with the infamous M'Namara, who blew up the Los Angeles Times building and blew out twenty-one lives of laborers. We gather these facts regarding Crow, of whom we had not heard previously, from the advertisement of the meeting, so that the promoters evidently believed that Crow had been canonized by his connection, whatever it was, with the M'Namara.

So far one would be warranted in believing that the meeting was to be of a purely industrial character, to advance by further violent agitation, the interests of the working classes. But there let us indulge in a slight correction of the advertisement, which describes Mother Jones as the "Stormy Petrel," though she is sometimes called the "Angel" of the "Working Class." As a matter of fact, Mother Jones is concerned with the welfare of only one working class, and that is organized labor. She has never manifested the slightest concern for the great mass of laborers, the unorganized. Nor has she manifested any interest in the affairs of any but militantly organized laborers, whose proceedings are characterized by uproar and flashing lightning. Mother Jones has been of no real assistance in any of the storms in which she has appeared. She is a sentiment rather than an aid; we were about to say that she is an inspiration but, perhaps, that would be too loose a use of the English language.

We will return now to the natural, though erroneous, supposition that the meeting was called only for a lurid discussion of industrial conditions. That would be a natural supposition from a perusal of the advertisement so far. But now, we find that it was to be held "under the auspices of the Hunt club" of Bisbee. So we presume, after all, that it was to be a political meeting, designed to aid the Hunt faction in its fight against the Olney faction.

The question may be asked, Wherein does all this concern the rank outsider? We will come to that later. The Arizona Federation of Labor held a convention at Tucson last week. It was opened by the governor, or the governor was the chief guest, and he had a right to be there and to address the convention the same as he has a right to appear at, and address, any industrial, commercial or civic convention, held within the state. But the governor went farther at Tucson. He declared his entire sympathy with the purposes of the federation, and, inferentially, his opposition to those who might oppose the federation. The governor is also said to have discussed the issues of the primary campaign with all the freedom and frankness with which he recently presented them at a religious service at Snowflake.

In the course of the convention, the federation endorsed the candidacy of the governor for re-nomination and election. This endorsement was a warm and almost a sacrilegious one, for it was intimated that if the machinations of the enemies of the governor should succeed, the crime would be paralleled only by that committed at Calvary. It may be slightly irregular to mention that a day or two before the endorsement of the governor, the federation endorsed Caplan and Schmidt, on trial for complicity in the blowing up of the Los Angeles Times.

We come now, to the point of view of the rank outsider, not merely the republican voter, but the democratic voter as well. He must realize that the federation stands only for those things that make for the welfare of its members, as against the welfare of all who do not belong to the federation, whether they are democrats or republicans. The relation between the governor and the federation which seems to have been entered into with the enthusiastic consent of both the governor and the federation, seems to cut across not only party lines, but also across democratic factional lines, for there must be within the Hunt faction of the democratic party, many whose interests are opposed to those of the federation, and many who have no interest at all in the affairs of the federation, but are likely at any time to be brought into conflict with the federation's interests.

The federation members are presumably not all democrats, yet by the action of the convention, they are committed to the governor, and they are thereby committed against all whom the governor may oppose. So, the democratic party, instead of being divided into Hunt and Olney, or Hunt and Anti-Hunt factions, is recognized by the federation as being divided into Federation and Anti-Federation factions.

In speaking of the federation, we should, perhaps, explain that while the federation embraces all organized labor within the state, the dominating, the entirely overshadowing influence is that of the organization of mine-workers. Thus, we have the democratic party now divided between the mine workers and those whose interests are opposed to the mine workers and those that at present, are not concerned in any industrial dispute. In the case of the renomination of the governor, there will be no political party line, only an industrial line, dividing the voters.

Australian Ballot of No Effect in Arizona

A correspondent of The Republican, Mr. P. I. Edson, in a communication, yesterday called attention to the inconsistency with the spirit of the Australian ballot system, of the law passed by the present democratic legislature, requiring voters to declare their party affiliations when they register. That law is not only inconsistent with, but it is in direct hostility to the spirit of the Australian system, whose main purpose is to throw secrecy about the ballot, in order that timid voters, and most voters are timid, may not be influenced by possible consequences of their exercise of the right of suffrage.

Under the old system, the voter, if he wanted to conceal his state of mind with respect to parties, he cast the "vest pocket" ticket, but that put him under suspicion of members of the party to which he was supposed to belong. Otherwise, if he wanted to vote a ticket in opposition to his party ticket, he took his party ticket from in plain view of the public, scratched out the names of the party candidates, and wrote in those of the opposite party candidates. The Australian system gave him freedom and independence of action. That system was opposed by machine politicians as tending to break down party lines.

Our amended election law neutralizes that effect by putting all voters on record, from which it was designed to free them.

That was not so much the purpose of the law, as it was to prevent members of a minority party from interference in the primaries of the majority. It is rather the irony of fate that the democratic faction most active in securing this amendment, is now the one which is urging republicans to register as democrats to aid it in the fight against the other faction, even to the extent of committing perjury.

The law should be repealed and we believe it will be repealed, if we can succeed in electing a legislature, a majority of whose members can comprehend that election laws are designed to promote good government, rather than the ascendancy of a political party.

Why cannot the state tax rate in Arizona be lowered in other years than political campaign years? That would seem easy in view of the much greater expenses we have in election years. Or, is it possible that the tax rate really bears no relation to the amount of taxes with which every citizen is burdened?

"Wilson holds the key to strike negotiations," a headline informs us. Then why the need of worry? Why does not the present turn the key and save us all some apprehension?

We have never believed the railroad strike would materialize. Still, if we were a Phoenix vacationist, we would hurry home, for the unexpected has been known to happen.

Speaking of arbitration of which we hear so much now, why not settle the Hunt-Olney difference that way, ending in an award of Tom Campbell for governor.

Federal appointees report that they have not yet received official instructions from their various departments to get out and "plug" for the governor.

Charles Evans Hughes, for a man who had a national reputation for being a rigid person, is leaving a pretty hot, sizzling trail across the continent.

This may not be a very rainy country, but we know of no other where the clouds can put up such a bluff. Even the old-timers are fooled.

The Bremen is supposed to have departed from her course and to be engaged now in North polar exploration work.

Even the troublesome Mexicans are not averse to arbitration.

HOW HE FELT

The conditions in the trenches were dreary in the extreme after the drenching and long-continued rainfall, but the irrepressible spirits of the "pals" were not yet entirely quenched when the order came to leave the trenches.

"Hurry up out of this, my gallant soldiers," was the cheery call of the sergeant to his waist-deep and rain-soaked men.

"Soldiers!" came the derisive answer from one of them. "I'm not a soldier; I'm a blooming bulrush!"

—Tit-Bits.

THE RESULT

Meeks—"My wife prefers tea for breakfast, while I prefer coffee."
Bleeks—"Then I suppose it is necessary to have both, eh?"

Meeks—"Oh, no, we compromise."
Bleeks—"In what way?"

Meeks—"We have tea."—Indianapolis Star.

WILLING

An English milkman had just finished his morning's round, and was returning home as he was addressed by an enlisting-sergeant.

"Well, my man," said the sergeant, "would you like to serve the king? It would be the making of you."

"That I would," said the milkman, very much excited. "How much does he take a day?"—Christian Register.

FRENCH IN THE TRENCH

Tommy (to Jack, on leave).—"What about the lingo? Suppose you want to say 'egg' over there, what do you say?"

Jack—"Ye jist say 'Oof.'"

Tommy—"But suppose you want two?"

Jack—"Ye say, 'Two oafs,' and the silly auld fule wif gies ye three, and ye jist gie her back one. Man, it's an awfu' easy language."—Glasgow Herald.

GOD'S ECONOMIES

Others may think what they will, but my faith in the good God's economies is so firm that I never pray for rain when it is dry, nor for sunshine when the skies are dark. It all comes out exactly right at the right time, even if in the meantime you must get up and hurry out and lay your body earth to earth and dust to dust in the grave.—Cora Harris in the New York Independent.

MESECK ARRAIGNED IN JUSTICE COURT

Charles Meseck, the young man who secured an automobile by fraud from the Robbitt-Polton Company and was brought back on Sunday from El Paso where he was arrested on a telegram from the sheriff's office, was arraigned before Justice Parker yesterday. His preliminary hearing will take place this morning.

Meseck traded a Jeffrey machine on a Buick and gave a $40 draft on a Glenhurst on a mortgage on the Buick. He represented that he was Joseph Meseck, of Globe. The mortgage accordingly bore the name of the latter as did the accompanying promissory note. The draft was found to be worthless.

Another matter before this court was the case of Enrique Monreal and Frank Lewis who were captured by the police while in the act of burglarizing the New Market on East Washington street early on Sunday morning. They were arraigned.

Scott Friedman, an aged negro was before the court on an indefinite charge. When he was arrested he might have been drunk or crazy. He was probably neither but appeared to be under the influence of a powerful drug. A quantity of marijuana was found in his possession. He seemed dazed throughout an informal examination in the course of which he said he was eighty years of age. Later he desired to correct about twenty. He offered to plead guilty to a disturbance of the peace or any other crime that the authorities might suggest. He was sent back to jail for ten days. At the end of that time he may be able to give an intelligible account of himself.

FINANCES and MARKETS

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—(Wall Street)—To those who assumed that the market would be seriously influenced or restrained by the pending crisis in the railway labor situation, today's session must have come as a surprise. Trading lacked the breadth and vigor of recent sessions, but was sufficiently large and diversified to embrace an unusual variety of issues.

Except for the first hour, when the undertone was somewhat uncertain, prices in the market ruled variably above last week's figures. Advances from Washington, the seat of the labor conferences, were received with interest and from some undiminished record. Wall Street was generally of the opinion that by the end of the day the deadlock would be overcome.

Reading was the outstanding feature, dealing in that stock being lower than the combined transaction in U. S. Steel, Mercantile Marine and several of the Coppers.

Other issues of pronounced strength included Bethlehem Steel, which rose 16 to 460 on a fairly active turnover, with nine for the preferred, the prominent metals and the Mexican group.

Motors and equipments were represented by Crucible Steel, Baldwin Locomotive, American Car, American Can, New York Air Brake, General Electric and Westinghouse. They were materially better.

Zinc share were backward. Total sales of stocks amounted to 440,000 shares.

Bonds lacked feature, aside from additional heavy offerings on Anglo-French and the new French notes. Total sales, par value, $3,460,000. U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Wheat developed a marked weakness today on step-down orders and liquidation. Possibility of a railroad strike, the Canadian crop report and the federal investigation of the recent sharp advance in prices were contributory factors in the weakness. Wheat lost more than five cents in price corn an extreme 1 1/2c, oats 1 1/2c, while provisions, despite lower hogs, were relatively firm.

The wheat market opened weak, hesitated, then slumped hopelessly. There was much liquidation, and this, among other things, encouraged short selling. The Canadian crop report, reflected in a slump at Winnipeg, was the principal factor.

Heavy sales of corn by traders who were notable as buyers last week and sympathy with wheat sent corn down.

Export houses were buyers of September wheat, but a check a decline in price based on the weakness of neighboring points.

Provisions were unsettled. Close wheat—Sept. $1.37 1/2; Dec. $1.41 1/2; corn—Sept. $1.27 1/2; Dec. 70c; oats Sept. 42c; Dec. 43c.

Pork—Sept. $25.45; Dec. $23.05. Lard—Sept. $13.35; Oct. $13.37. Ribs—Sept. $14.15; Oct. $13.80.
